

The White Rock Museum & Archives presents:
Upstream/Downriver: Walking the stáɫw Watershed

February 10, 2022 – White Rock, BC: The White Rock Museum & Archives is proud to present Upstream/Downriver: Walking the stáɫw Watershed. This exhibit will be shown in our gallery from February 17 – May 24, 2022.

A collaborative research-creation project that addresses climate change at the local scale of the lower Fraser River watershed has resulted in an exhibition titled Upstream/Downriver: Walking the stáɫw Watershed. The new display takes audiences on a journey of walking, listening, and learning.

Artists Alysha Creighton, Erica Grimm, and Joshua Hale have combined video, sound, and drawing, and in collaboration with Tracie Stewart, created an installation that connects viewers with the realities of climate impacts in our region. The artists and Project Siyám Patricia Victor walked with experts along the stáɫw and listened to how climate change is affecting the region. The resulting soundscape and visual works also give voice to the river, pointing the way to how we may reimagine our relationship with the land and learn to walk in a good way on this territory we call home.

Staff and leadership at the museum are committed to reaching out to and engaging the White Rock community. Our mission is to preserve our community's heritage, reveal our community's story, share stories worth telling, and welcome everyone.

The White Rock Museum & Archives is located at 14970 Marine Drive in the historic 1912 train station on the waterfront. For more information, please visit www.whiterockmuseum.ca or call 604-541-2221.
